INTRODUCTION

Californians each year provide generous support to a wide array of charities, either directly or through commercial fund-raisers who are hired to solicit donations on behalf of the charity. This supplemental report on commercial fund-raising activities covers the public donation of used personal property to charities and the resale of property by for-profit thrift stores, as well as the donation of vehicles for the benefit of charity. In issuing the report, Attorney General Bill Lockyer seeks to provide information that may be used to critically evaluate charitable solicitation of used personal property.

By law, commercial fund-raisers are required to register and file annual financial disclosure reports with the Attorney General's Registry of Charitable Trusts. The data here covers 1999 activities that were reported by commercial fund-raisers in the year 2000. To help provide a better snapshot of activities by commercial fund-raisers, the report this year includes two new tables that compile data submitted on reports that were returned as incomplete. In most cases, the reports were rejected because they were not signed by the commercial fund-raiser and two officers of the charity for whom the solicitations were made.

Charities are encouraged to work with currently registered paid solicitors, have a written contract with terms important to the organization, and monitor commercial solicitations and all expenses associated with the charity's commercial fund-raising activities. Donors and potential donors are encouraged to resist high-pressure tactics, to ask for written information about the charity for which a solicitation is being made, including the nonprofit's name, address and telephone number, and to how their donation will be distributed.

THRIFT STORES

Thrift stores selling used clothing or other donated goods for charity must file annual financial reports with the Attorney General's Registry of Charitable Trusts. These thrift stores, which handle what is known as "salvageable personal property" under state law, may be operated directly by a charity or by for-profit vendors who are considered to be commercial fund-raisers if they receive a management fee or commission from the charity, or purchase a majority of their goods from charities or social welfare organizations at negotiated prices (Government Code § 12599).

Thrift store revenue and expenditure reports are available for public review at the Attorney General's Registry of Charitable Trusts in Sacramento, on the Attorney General's web site (<http://caag.state.ca.us/charities/>) or at the reporting charity's principal office. (Note: Some thrift stores are operated by religious organizations, which are not required to file financial reports with the Attorney General.)

Charities that operate their own thrift stores incur overhead and other expenses of a retail store. After thrift store expenses are paid, the charities use their earnings for such things as management expenses and charitable program services. On the other hand, charities that solicit used items and sell them to for-profit vendors do not incur the expenses of operating retail stores. Charities that sell used goods to for-profit vendors may or may not earn more money than do charities that operate their own thrift stores. There are advantages and disadvantages to both types of operations.

This report contains specific information about charities that sell used items to for-profit vendors. There are two types of arrangements: vendors that receive management fees or commissions from the charities, and vendors that purchase the goods from the charities at negotiated prices. Each is reported separately. The data is taken directly from reports filed by commercial fund-raisers and has not been verified independently by the Attorney General's Office.

For-profit thrift store operators that purchased goods from charities reported total revenue of more than $58 million for the reporting period 1999. About $12 million of that (20.95%) was paid to charitable organizations.

For the same period, for-profit thrift store operators that paid a fee or commission to charities reported total revenue of over $7 million. Of that, $631,361 (8.44%) was paid to charitable organizations.

VEHICLE DONATION PROGRAMS

In California, the solicitation of vehicle donations to charity has increased during recent years. These solicitations result primarily in the donation of automobiles, and are administered both by charities in-house and by commercial fund-raisers who contract with charities to solicit on their behalf.

According to the financial statements filed by the commercial fund-raisers who solicit vehicle donations and were registered with the Attorney General's Registry of Charitable Trusts in 1999, such donations resulted in approximately $37 million in gross proceeds. About 31% of that amount, or $11,602,932, was distributed to the charities. The remaining funds were retained by the fund-raisers for payment of expenses and fees. These figures represent an increase in gross proceeds of approximately 20% and nearly a 11.28% increase in distributions to charity compared to the last report, which covered calendar year 1998.

The vehicle donation process usually begins when a donor responds to an advertising campaign. In the initial phone conversation, the donor will be asked questions about the vehicle. Usually the vehicle is accepted, unless the cost of towing exceeds the value of the vehicle.

Donors are responsible for notifying the Department of Motor Vehicles of the transfer of registration. Failure to transfer registration has subjected many donors to subsequent penalties and expenses for donated vehicles, most often accrued parking violations.

After the vehicle is picked up from the donor, the fund-raiser either arranges for resale of the vehicle to the public or sells it to a parts wholesaler, depending on the condition of the vehicle. A significant problem for purchasers of donated vehicles is the reliability of the resellers in warranting the condition of the vehicles. The majority of vehicles donated to charity are not in good condition. Unscrupulous resellers have sold vehicles that fail to operate soon after they are driven out of the sellers' lots. Because donated vehicles do not need to pass vehicle emissions tests at the time of donation, purchasers of donated vehicles should insist that they receive valid smog certificates from the reseller at time of purchase.

Donors of vehicles usually claim tax deductions for their donations. Advertising campaigns for vehicle donations sometimes explicitly promise "maximum tax donation" and "highest value." The actual amount that can be deducted is determined by the IRS, not the solicitor. According to the IRS, a taxpayer may deduct the fair market value of the donated vehicle. The IRS imposes further reporting and documentation requirements on donations of property. The Attorney General's Office has received complaints about tax deduction promises made by fund-raisers and their subsequent failure to provide documentation to donors. Donors are ultimately responsible for the deduction taken and may not rely on the representations contained in solicitations to support their income tax deductions.

California law requires a nonprofit organization engaged in any solicitation or sales solicitation for charitable purposes, or a commercial fund-raiser, to provide a donor of a motor vehicle, aircraft or vessel with a receipt within 90 days from date of donation (Business & Professions Code section 22930). The receipt must describe the donated property in terms of its model, age, condition, and level of use (including, but not limited to, the mileage, in the case of a vehicle), and whether a visual inspection by the nonprofit organization or commercial fund-raiser, or a representative of the nonprofit organization or commercial fund-raiser, indicated that there were any readily apparent defects that would materially reduce the value of the property. If the donated property is sold prior to the issuance of the receipt, the receipt shall also include all of the following: (1) the date the property was sold; (2) if the property was sold to a dismantler, the amount paid to the nonprofit organization or commercial fund-raiser for the property; and (3) if the property was altered subsequent to the donation and the alteration affected the value of the property, a statement that the property was altered and whether the alteration increased or decreased the value of the property.

The purpose of this report is not to discourage vehicle donations but to present some of the problems associated with vehicle donations and practical information, both for donors of vehicles and the purchasers of the vehicles.

SPECIFIC FINDINGS

- Table #1 Thrift Store Operations - Costs of Goods Purchased from Charity.
Lists each charitable organization that solicited donations of used clothing and merchandise (“salvageable personal property”) and sold the property to a for-profit thrift store. The for-profit thrift store operator is also listed. Each charitable organization is ranked by the percentage of money that actually went to the charity, i.e., from a high of 37.73% to a low of .02%.
- Table #2 Thrift Store Operations - Management Fee/Commission
Lists each charitable organization that solicited donations of used clothing and merchandise and paid a management fee or commission to a for-profit thrift store operator. The for-profit thrift store operator is also listed. Each charitable organization is ranked by the percentage of total revenue that actually went to the charity, i.e., from a high of 100% to a low of 3.20%.
- Table #3 Thrift Stores Cost of Goods Sold - Incomplete Reports
Lists organizations that operate thrift stores that registered in 1999, and filed financial reports that are unacceptable. To be accepted, financial reports must be signed by the commercial fund-raiser and also by two officers of the charities. In most cases the financial reports listed in this table are unacceptable because they have not been signed by the officers of the charities.
- Table #4 Vehicle Donation Operations
Lists each charitable organization that solicited vehicles and paid a management fee or commission to a for-profit reseller. Each charitable organization is ranked by the percentage of total revenue that actually went to the charity, i.e., from a high of 400% to a low of 11.82%.
- Table #5 Vehicle Donation Operations - Incomplete Reports
Lists commercial fund-raisers that operate vehicle donation programs that registered in 1999 and submitted financial reports that are not acceptable for filing. Financial reports must be signed by the commercial fund-raiser and also by two officers of the organization. In most cases the financial reports listed in this table are unacceptable because they have not been signed by the officers of the charities.

Note: Some charities may be listed more than once. Each listing shows a separate for-profit thrift store or vehicle reseller operation.
